Introduction and Applicability

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York ("New York Fed") publishes this website ("Website") to make information about what we do accessible to the public. The New York Fed makes the Website and information it contains ("Content") available subject to these Terms of Use ("Terms").

In general, the New York Fed intends for Website visitors to have permission to use and share Content. Some conditions apply to all Content. Those conditions are described below.

In addition, certain Content is subject to more specific restrictions on use ("Use Restrictions"). Use Restrictions are described either in the Terms or with the relevant Content where it appears on the Website. Visitors who choose to use Content to which Use Restrictions apply may do so only if you also comply with the applicable Use Restrictions.

For the limited circumstances in which the New York Fed collects personal information through the Website, the New York Fed follows the practices described in our Privacy Statement.

The New York Fed may change the Terms and the Privacy Statement at any time without prior notice. If you cannot or choose not to comply with these Terms, do not use the Website.

The New York Fed also makes some Content available through other electronic means, such as an RSS feed, an application programming interface (API), or tools provided by third parties. These Terms generally apply to Content accessed through those other distribution channels as well.

The New York Fed owns the Website and the New York Fed or its licensors own the Content. All material and functionality comprising the Website and Content is protected by copyright, trademark, patent, trade secret, and other intellectual property laws.

The New York Fed grants you a non-exclusive license, subject to the Terms, to use, copy, and distribute Content for your personal or business purposes. You may:

- Download, store, and use Content in any format or media,
- Copy and distribute the Content in any format or media, and
- Modify and create derivative works from the Content.

Conditions

Whenever you use any of the Content, the following conditions apply:

1. When you copy or distribute any Content, you must include any copyright notice and other source identifiers that the New York Fed includes with that Content. If the Content identifies individual authors, you must also include that information in your copy.

If the Terms or relevant Website pages provide a specific form of attribution for the Content you use, you must follow that form. Otherwise, follow this format: “© [year] Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Content from the New York Fed subject to the Terms of Use at newyorkfed.org.”

2. If Content includes a Website address from which the Content may be obtained without charge, you may not remove that citation from the Content.
3. If you modify any of the Content, you must clearly label the modified Content to ensure there is no confusion or ambiguity about the difference between the original Content and the modifications or the source of the modifications. You may not attribute any modifications or derivative works to the New York Fed.
4. You will avoid modifying the Content or using excerpts of the Content in a manner that distorts or misrepresents the Content as it has been published by the New York Fed. You may not modify the title or headline of the Content.
5. If you distribute the Content, you must make the Content available with the same permissions, conditions, and restrictions set forth in these Terms. You may not impose more restrictive terms or conditions on the Content.
6. You must not state or imply that the New York Fed endorses your use, reproduction, or distribution of the Content or any product, service, financial instrument, or material you create or derive using the Content or any excerpt of the Content. The New York Fed does not permit the use of its name in advertising, as an endorsement for any product or service, or for any other commercial purpose.
7. You are responsible for your use, copying, and distribution of Content, including any errors, modifications, or alterations you introduce, whether intentionally or inadvertently, and for all products, services, financial instruments, and materials you create or derive using the Content or any excerpt of the Content.

Copyright Law

The New York Fed does not intend the license granted in the Terms to limit any right you have to use the Content as permitted under United States copyright law. The license granted in these Terms continues through the duration of the New York Fed's copyright in the Content, but terminates automatically if you fail to comply with the Terms.

User is Solely Responsible for Content Use

As noted in paragraph (7) of the Conditions, each user is responsible for how you use the Content. The New York Fed disclaims any responsibility for any use you make of the Website or the Content. The New York Fed disclaims all liability to you or to anyone with whom you share the Content or any product, service, financial instrument, or material you create or derive using the Content or any excerpt of the Content.

None of the Content is investment advice. The New York Fed does not endorse, promote, or participate in the pricing of any financial instrument or transaction that references any of the Content, including any reference rate data or related materials.

The New York Fed may change the Website at any time in its discretion and without prior notice. The New York Fed may also withdraw, modify, or amend published Content at any time in its discretion and without prior notice. The New York Fed may alter the methods of calculation, publication schedule, rate revision practices or availability of reference rates, certain research reports, and any other Content at any time without prior notice.

Users are responsible for monitoring the Website for any changes, updates, or corrections relevant to Content you choose to use. Users are responsible for determining what steps, if any, you should take to reflect changes, updates, or corrections the New York Fed makes to Content in any product, service, financial instrument, or material you create or derive using the Content or any excerpt of the Content.

When you cite or distribute a Blog post, you must include a link to the post where it appears on the Website.

If you choose to submit comments on the Liberty Street Economics Blog, you must adhere to the Comment Guidelines posted in the Liberty Street Economics blog.

- Reference Rates – Reference Rates data and other information about reference rates posted in the Markets & Policy Implementation section of the Website

Brackets in the form of notice indicate detail to be completed by the person using or distributing the reference rate data or related information.*

You must follow any attribution requirements noted in or with any Staff Report or Working Paper you use.

- Household Debt and Credit Reports – Reports, charts, and data related to the Quarterly Report on Household Debt and Credit posted in the Economic Research, Data & Indicators section of the Website

The Quarterly Report on Household Debt and Credit is analysis based on New York Fed Consumer Credit Panel / Equifax data. The New York Fed publishes data with its analysis.

The New York Fed disclaims any responsibility for this analysis and interpretation of Survey of Consumer Expectations data."

If you use figures or graphs to present SCE data in a publication that generally includes separate attributions for figures and graphs, use the following attribution for your figures and graphs:

"Source: Survey of Consumer Expectations, New York Fed."

No Warranty

Your use of the Website and the Content is at your own risk. The New York Fed disclaims any warranties of merchantability, noninfringement, and fitness for a particular purpose. Counter-notice. If you posted Content to the Website which has been removed under this procedure and you believe the Content that was removed or to which access was disabled is not infringing or was posted with authorization from the copyright owner or the copyright owner's agent or as permitted by law, you may send a counter-notice with the following information:

4. Your contact information, including your name, address, telephone number, and email address,

If a counter-notice is received by the New York Fed, the New York Fed will send a copy of the counter-notice to the original complaining party informing that person that the New York Fed may replace the removed material or cease disabling access to it in 10 business days. Unless the original complaining party files an action seeking a court order against the user who provided the Content, the New York Fed may replace the removed Content or restore access to it in 10 to 15 business days following receipt of the counter-notice.

Send To. DMCA notices and counter-notices should be sent to research.publications@ny.frb.org, or Legal Department, Federal Reserve Bank of New York, 33 Liberty Street, New York, NY 10045.

If any provision of these Terms is determined by a court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid or unenforceable, application of that provision is to be limited to the extent it is invalid or unenforceable, and other provisions are to continue in full force and effect.

Choice of Law and Venue

The Terms and the relationship between you and the New York Fed is to be construed and enforced in accordance with the federal law of the United States and, in the absence of controlling federal law, the laws of the State of New York, even if applicable conflict-of-law rules indicate the laws of a different jurisdiction would govern.
